Clad in only a diaper and light jacket, a 16-month-old baby wandered a mile and a half from his parents* home at North Galiano on Thursday night.

Search was carried on through out the night and the baby was found unharmed on the beach at 8.30 the following morning. He had lost his diaper and shoes and was wearing only his jacket. Despite a night on the beach without clothing, he appeared to have suffered no more than a few cuts and scratches.

Lacrosse and a Lot More

Lacrosse box at Ganges is be-coming a reality. And it will offer a lot more besides lacrosse.

Situated on school property north of Gulf Islands Secondary School, the playing area has been blasted level and the fence is already up four feet for half the way around.

Bob Eveleigh and Geoff Howland are the men responsible for the progress.

When finished it will include two tennis courts, two basketball courts, roller hocky rink, open-air gymnasium and a 50 yard running track.

The box will be lighted for night play.

IAN BROWN

Island life is a challenge for Ian F. Brown. On Monday he took over Mouat's Store as general manager. Already moved into a home on Burgoyne Bay Road, Mr. Brown is feeling his way into the island store.

Managing a store is nothing new; he's been doing it most of his life. He's run retail stores in Victoria and Port Alberni and on the mainland. He has been as far east as Toronto. Now he is back home. In fact he has not only come back home to work, but he's closer home than he's ever been. A native son of Victoria, he prefers the islands to his own community.

Tall, thin and run off his feet his first day, he found time to reflect on his years in business.

After coming out of the RCAF at the end of World War Two, he went into the hardware business and he's never been far away.

He was department manager of the Hudson's Bay hardware section in Victoria and manage ed the retail store of Mc and Mc for a number of years. When the Victoria firm closed its retail outlets he went to Port Alberni and later to the mainland.

During a better than two-year stint as wholesale salesman he paid regular visits to Mouat's and was delighted to join the staff of a former customer.

With a son in Gulf Islands Secondary School and a daughter already out of school in Victoria, he and Mrs. Brown are planning to build a home on the island sometime in the future.

NOT SALT SPRING ISLAND!

Ganges please! Salt Spring Islanders want no change.

The results of a random samp. ling conducted by the Salt Spring Island Ratepayers' Association have indicated an overwhelming preference for the existing Postal District Address of "Ganges". "Saltspring Island" ran a distant second.

The survey was conducted by directors of the association who solicited the reactions of over a hundred residents of the Island and invited calls from all interested parties.

While the opinions indicate that nearly two-thirds are in favor of retaining the mailing ad-dress of "Ganges", there were many who actually favored the idea of "Salt Spring", but were reluctant to face the task of writing to friends and businesses to advise them of a change of mailing address.

The Postal Department has been advised of the survey and its outcome. It was stressed by the Ratepayers' Association that their survey is a "random sampling" only and does not necessarily represent the opinion of the entire Island Community.

Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce had earlier reached a similar conclusion.

When the Salt Spring Island Planning Association meets in Mahon Hall at 8 pm there will be two resolutions for consideration.

First resolution calls for the restriction of hunting on and around island lakes. Second proposal asks that power boats using a motor exceeding 5 hp be banned from island lakes.

The resolutions are not offered as a substantial form of legislation. The association has no such authority. They will be discussed in order to assess pub lic opinion on the use of island fresh water areas.

BAD SIGN

Fishing is going to be poor.
Pod of killer whales went up Stewart Channel on Monday evening. There were five of the whales, all hungry.

When an oil spillage occurred at Anacortes on Tuesday, Canadian islands were alerted.

Barge at the American city discharged an estimated quarter million gallons of diesel oil into local waters.

Oil slick spreading over the water extended up the Gulf of Georgia and by Tuesday evening it was reported that much of the discharge was evaporating.

SPEC on Salt Spring Island was particularly alerted to the very problem they have warned could readily happen in the event of carrying oil in giant tan-kers through local waters.

Islanders were warned that if they find birds suffering from oil damage to call SPEC or the provincial government for guidance on cleaning.

SAILOR SOUNDS CALL FOR SAILORS

Where are the island sailors? On Salt Spring Island the call has been sounded by a man who not only sails a boat, but builds dozens of them.

Laurie Neish, Industrial Arts ary School, is starting sabot sail ing early in May.

Neish has built his own boats and has supervised the building of scores of others.

His more recent contribution will be put to the test next month.

He already has a number of sabots lined up. His only prob-lem is to find more. They can be sabots or any other craft pro-pelled by a sail. They will all be welcome in Ganges Harbour early in May.

Interested sailors may call Mr. Neish at the Gulf Islands Secondary School or Marshall Sharp, Beddis Road.

Holland has its problems. A large and attractive public square in Amsterdam has been invaded by squatters until a special force of police has been re-tained to control the crowds. Marg Simons was reminiscing this week about that square. She and Art and family cycled into Amsterdam's hungry as gunters. They stopped at a bakery and acquired a loaf. They drooled as they sat in the square on some stone steps. Only strange feature was the predominantly hippy populace and the large number of police officers. They learn-ed later that there had been a violent demonstration there the previous day.

WHAT USE IS A LAKE?

Salt Spring Islanders must decide in the near future exactly what the island lakes are for. There is a strong move towards the elimination of sports activities on the lakes. Power boats and water-skiing are frowned on by some. Others are hostile to all types of boat.

The lakes are serving a wide range of purposes.

They are sources of domestic water. Maxwell Lake and St. Mary Lake are currently serving the north end of the island and Fulford draws its water from Stowell Lake. Cusheon Lake is also a source of water for a housing district.

Hunting around the lakeshores has been under fire for two reasons. Some object to the alleged danger of discharging firearms near habitations. Others fear the destruction of wildlife.

Some residents choose to live near the shores of a lake in order to enjoy its facilities in terms of skiing and hunting. Others see the lake as a natural quiet area, reserved for retired people and wildlife.

Whatever the basic purpose of the eleven bodies of water on Salt Spring Island, the relative importance of these activities will be thoroughly discussed on Monday evening by planners.

The Salt Spring Island Planning Association has no administrative function at all. It is, nevertheless, a recognized sounding board for public opinion.

Those who have views on the use of inland waters of Salt Spring Island would be well advised to pay atten tion to this meeting.

Letters to the Editor

BOATS ON LAKES

Editor, Driftwood,

With reference to the Planning Association resolution to ban boats with motors on the lakes on Salt Spring Island I would like to make several comments and recommendations.

I have purchased property on St. Mary Lake as I have always enjoyed the fishing there and as the lake is about two miles long and has about five miles or so of shoreline, it would be unlike. ly that I or any other residents who had retired, or summer there to fish or holiday would be inclined to row this distance, therefore a ban would deny these people one of the amenities they had when they purchased their large enough for water skiing.

I certainly favor sailing on the lakes and intend to build an"El Toro" sailboat for my own and my children's pleasure, because of the size of St. Mary Lake quite a wind can get up and upsets in small sailboats can easily happen, and some reasonably speedy way to reach the upset boat should be available.

In view of the foregoing I would like to recommend that if a resolution is to go forward to the Planning Board it should be a reasonable one, and in my op-inion this should be one limiting the horsepower of boat motors on St. Mary Lake to 10 horse power in view of the lake size, and 3 horse power on any of the other lakes. This should, I feel, allow the safe and sane enjoy ment of these valuable assets without denying people their rights.

As I, and many others, are pre sently only weekend residents I would also like to suggest that a special meeting be held on a Friday night or Saturday so that all interested parties would have an opportunity to debate this matter which affects many other people who would not be able to attend your regular Monday meeting.

I. B. Forster, 2441 Camelot Road, Victoria, B. C. April 20, 1971.

I do not think that this or any other of the lakes are really IN SAANICH HOSPITAL

PENDER PLAYERS

The Gerry Stevens' big room, above Otter Bay, could hardly hold the members of the March meeting. The host perched on a kitchen stool; ditto Marion McKechnie, off a late ferry; and the voice of the hostess, reading a fallen woman; then a county wife, filtered from the kitchen. There was no space, nor seats left.

Gertrude Bennett had a job allotting 26 roles, with only eight copies of the play, Escape, by John (Forsyte Saga) Galsworthy. And each man in his turn read many parts.

Frank Plunkett, the hero: Jack Bridge and John Copley, on top, as ever, were two pol-icemen, wardens, laborers. Al-ex Gray rose from Cockney to high church parson. Partridge Pearson, loud and clear, in all characters; president Olive Au-chterlonie, perfect as a maid, a top-drawer wife, and a seven year girl.

Others reading multi-roles were Capt. Gecil Claxton, Jessie Cornaby, Edith Pearson, Joan Purchase, Blanche Smyth, Gerry Stevens. Relaxing, Flo Bridge, Helen Claxton, Dorothy and Nep Grimmer and Connie Swartz. Swartz.

Pender players cosset their throats. Nobody smoked until eating time, when two had a cigarette each. One puffed a spasmodic pipe. And 17 remained pure.

to be the trip of a lifetime. We were eager to make the most of our two months in the British Isles. It was our aim to do unusual things and, wherever possible to go off the beaten tourist path.

Pondering assorted ideas with this thought in mind, something reminded me of a conversation at a teaparty some years ago. One of the guests referred to an experience she had had "at the Queen's garden party". I was intrigued. How did she happen to be at such an august function? She said her invitation came through "Canadian headquarters in London".

Curiosity alone had prompted the question. At that time I had no thought of visiting England. The forgotten conversation was brought to mind by a small newspaper item listing dates for the Queen's 1970 garden parties.

I rang Lilla.
"Would you like to go to the Queen's garden party at Buck-ingham Palace?"

"Of course I'd like to go! But how do we get there?" Lilla asked.

"I don't know. I just wanted to be sure you would like to go to be sure you would like to go to be sure finding out." before I start finding out.'

A local authority was consulted. He hadn't a clue, but suggested someone further afield who might know. This person directed me to Canada House in London for information. An air letter went off at once to the social secretary at Canada House. This was in early February. A prompt reply was received enclosing two application forms to be filled in and returned to the Canadian High Commissioner by mid April several weeks before the three garden parties scheduled for

Invitations are issued by com-

Our application forms were filled out and returned to London without delay. We gave a Surrey address.

The invitations arrived about mid-May. The large impressive envelopes were imprinted with the Lord Chamberlain's seal and

The invitations were for June 4 party.

The day was sunny and quite warm, with just enough breeze to temper the heat. My excited London cousin accompanied us to the Palace garden gate. As she turned to leave, her expression of mixed pride and longing made me feel somewhat ishamed, that we, living thousands of miles away, should have this honor, while she, having lived almost on the Queen's doorstep all her life, could not share it with us.

We learned from newspapers that British people from all walks of life are invited to these royal social functions; members of the aristocracy; navy, army and air force personnel; village officials; town councillors; representatives of professions, crafts and trades, and many other Britons are included in the guest list, along with people from Commonwealth and foreign countries. While at the party we talked to two Salvation Army men and their wives. They were jubilant at having been among those chosen at the party to be presented to the Queen as she walked among her guests.

But back to the garden gate. We went in by Constitution Hill gate at Hyde Park corner, a simple entrance through a high brick wall. London bobbies stood guard outside the gate. Inside, two stately Guardsmen, resplendent in scarlet uniforms and bearskin busbies, collected open lawn where a large number of guests had already gathered for the party.

Having arrived soon after the gates opened at 3.15 p.m. we had time to stroll among the flowers and trees before the party started. Perhaps there are more beautiful parts of the garden tucked away somewhere. The corner we saw was not outstand-What did interest us, was to find here and there a weed and faded blossom. In the Queen's garden!

We reached the great lawn to find a large congregation of people on the site and hundreds more coming from several directions, including the Palace itself. About five thousand people are invited to each of the Queen's four garden parties -three held at Buckingham Palace in June, and one at Holyrood

House, Edinburgh in July.

Buckingham Palace is not a beautiful building. The side facing the Mall looks like a barracks. The opposite, private side, where the party was held is more attractive. Here are stately windows. The handsome door opens on to a wide brick terrace. A flight of steps, the full width of the terrace, descends to the great lawn. To the right of the lawn from the terstood a long marquee where tea was later served to the guests. On the far left of the lawn, at the edge of the wooded garden mentioned previously, a quaint little summer house nestles among shrubs. It was here the royal party went to tea. Top ranking regimental bands played during the afternoon from two widely separated bandstands, A fascinating variety of dress among the guests kept us inter ested until the party began. Smart army uniforms, handsome robes and turbans worn by overseas visitors, all gave color to the sombre clothing of other male guests, hundreds of them attired in morning dress: striped trousers, cutaway coat, grey ly rolled umbrella, which, rain or shine, seems to be an integ-ral part of the dress of a large section of England's male population. Considering the English climate, perhaps the ever present "brolly" is a good idea!

or Lounge Suit

Of course we took a good look at feminine wear. Not all the ladies heeded the "command" suggestion about wearing a hat.
While enjoying this pastime

we became aware that guests were forming themselves into three long wide aisles leading from the Palace steps. We join-ed the centre lane and learned that the Queen, Prince Philip and possibly Princess Anne would each come down one of the aisles.

Precisely at four o'clock the bands struck up "God Save the Queen" as the royal party came on to the terrace. Never had I heard "The Queen" played with such fervor.

With Her Majesty and Prince Philip were the Queen Mother, Princess Anne and two other ladies, reported to be the Duchess of Gloucester and the Duchess of Kent.

The Queen walked through the aisle to the right; Prince Philip came down the centre, while Princess Anne and her grandmother went to left. Preceding the Queen was the Lord Chamberlain who chose certain persons to be presented to Her Majesty. These fortunate guests were brought out to the centre of the aisle to await their turn to be greeted by the Queen.

The same procedure was foll-owed with Prince Philip and Princess Anne; a member of the Lord Chamberlain's staff choosing the people to be honored. among the fortunate few, we did have the pleasure of watching Prince Philip as he chatted for several minutes with a group of uniformed nursing sisters across from us. Prince Philip's left hand was in a cast and this appeared to be the cause of animated discussion and some merriment between His Royal Highness and the Sisters.

The Queen's progress was slow er. After the Prince had passed us we went over to the Queen's aisle. Although we were some five or six feet from the inside edge, so fluid was the movement of people, by the time the Queen reached our place we with beautiful complexion and lovely blue eyes. News photographs under-rate her beauty.

The Queen moved on down the line. We saw a crowd gathering at the marquee, so we too, set off to get our tea.

The covered "tearoom", some thirty feet wide and of considerable length, open all down one side, allowed ample room for serving the thousands of guests. Set all along the full length of the marquee, near the back, were tables laden with appetizing delicacies - finger sandwichwith substantial meat or fish filling; savoury pasties; small buttered tea buns and fancy breads, and a seemingly endless variety of tea cakes, from slices of plain madeira loaf cake to elaborate petit-fours and tasty fruit tartlets. Guests helped themselves to food of their choice. A host of waitresses, in black dresses and white caps and aprons, stood behind the tables ready to serve tea, coffee, milke, non-alcoholic beverages and ices(ice

It was an immense crowd to look after and it was done so smoothly. The guests were mannerly, as one would expect, but even so, they came in hundreds to be served - and served they were, with courtesy and speed. There was no confusion, no lining up. It was a fantastic experience. This, I thought, represents the optimum, the 'nth degree, in organization and coordination.

We learned later that teas for royal public functions are handled by a catering service which supplies food, china, personnel, - everything needed for the occasion.

Having acquired our dainties and a cup of tea, we now had to find somewhere to enjoy the repast. Hundreds of white ornamental iron garden tables and chairs, such as the English love, had been set out on the lawn near the marquee. We wander-ed in and out among the sea of guests until, at last, we found a table with two empty chairs. Our table companions were a friendly couple from near Salisbury. They were interested in us as

Library Week At Ganges

Next week is "Library Week" in this province, and the Salt Spring library is following the example of the city public libraries by offering a moratorium on fines for overdue books during this week.

In fact the island library will go a step further. They will take in books from other librar ies and undertake to return them for you.

So for those readers who have books long overdue, either to Salt Spring Library or any other public library, now is the time to get rid of them and ease the conscience.

When the library here is closed, books can be pushed through a slot near the doorway, so it is made quite simple. All libraries like to get books returned, and better late than never.

For those who have not become members of our well-

Canadians, having been surround ed by thousands of Canadian soldiers in wartime.

After tea, we saw, on the far side of the lawn, people forming a line stretching from the royal tea house to the Palace. We moved over that way and it was at this point that we met the two Salvation Army couples. They told us the guests were waiting for the royal party to leave the tea house and go back to the Pa-lace, which they did, right on the dot of 6 p.m., and entered the Palace by a side door. We were too far back to see much of the royal procession, but did catch a brief glimpse of Her

Now it was time to leave the party. We had come in by one of the garden gates. It would be fun to go out through the Palace itself. We followed a throng of people up the steps to the ter-race and through the stately hall at snail's pace - to the official entrance. Cars were coming and going in the quadrangle, while lords and ladies and lesser folk were being informed over the loud speaker: "Your car is ready!"

By this time we were wondering if we should have come this way, not having a car to be called. We needn't have worried. Dozens of people, also apparently without cars, accompanied us as we descended the wide steps, made our way across the court and through the main gate of the Palace to the street

PIONEERS CAME TO SALT SPRING 21 YEARS AGO

Centennial years recall the pioneers. The centennial year, recall the tales of the past and the people of the past.

On Salt Spring Island it was not left to the centennial years to bring pioneers together. W. M. Mouat, of Ganges, has un-earthed a copy of the Vancouver Island publication, Islands Events for June 30, 1950. Feature story of the issue was the reunion of pioneers on Salt Spring.

The reunion was sparked by the late Gavin Mouat, who en-tertained the 250 old-timers and 300 children. Co-hosts were the Crofton family and the event took place in the half-day and many of the 300 students were descendants of the pioneers they recognized.

Oldest native son of the island was Ernest Harrison, 83 years old. He beat by one year the first white man born on Salt Spring Island, Joseph J. Akerman who was also present at the gathering. Mr. Harrison was a descendant of the original negro settlers on Salt Spring Island.
Joe Akerman recalled the days when oxen were used for transportation and the crook of a tree served as a sled. Mr. Akerman was 82 at the time and was born on South Salt Spring Island in 1868.

Guest of honor for the occasion was the Premier of British Columbia, the late Byron Johnson. He was on an informal visit and exchanged notes with hundreds of people during the afternoon.

Meeting between the Premier and Ernie Harrison was reported. The Islander was a notable athlete in his younger days and the Premier had been a keen sportsman. They recalled the times that Ernie Harrison had thrown the youthful Johnson out of the ball park when he had sneaked in without paying.

Dining room of Harbour House was decorated with photographs of the old days on Salt Spring Island. The records dated back to 1885 when Salt Spring Island was "Admirals Island" after its original naming by Capt. Richards, R.M., in 1859. It was noted that the Admiral so honored was Baynes who commanded the Pacific Station of the Royal Navy from 1857 to 1860.

He also gave his name to Baynes Peak, which is better known today as Maxwell Mountain, after an island resident.

It was the saline springs at the north end of the island, no longer accessible to the public, which gave rise to the popular name of Salt Spring Island. The present name was formally adop ted in 1905 by the Geographic Board of Canada.

The gathering brought visitors from as far away as New Brunswick. Dr. Arthur Walter travelled across the Dominion to take part.

From Vale, Oregon, came Percy Purvis, who was married in St. Mark's Church in 1892. The day of the reunion was also his wedding anniversary. He was accompanied by his son and daughter.

There were then about 50 negro people on the island stated the report, all descendants of the original settlers of the isl-and who had "either escaped or bought themselves out of slavery"

Mr. Harrison's mother and grandfather had both been slaves, stated the report.

William Caldwell "Uncle Bill" resident of Salt Spring Island since 1883 was a contractor and claimed to have built the Opera House in Vancouver. His brother, Harry and his wife, had lived on the island continuously since 1884 and 1882, respectively, and had then been married more than 60 years.

Mrs. Leon King and Mrs. Dick Maxwell were born on the island 70 years before the reunion. Mrs. King is still on the island and was among the pioneers receiving medallions earlier this year.

Alfred Ruckle was the pioneer who had lived on his original homestead for the longest period. He had lived at Beaver Point for 70 years without a break.

Mrs. M. Lumley had moved to Victoria, but she returned to the island to celebrate her 86th birth-

There were messages from old-timers who couldn't make it. Frank Scott was in the Veterans* Hospital in Victoria and his broth er, Geoff accepted a presentation on his behalf.

Greatest feature of the day's gathering was the opportunity to sit around and recall the events of yesteryear.

There were tales of land-clearing and massive tasks undertaken in past years when the only assistance was from horses or oxen. They spoke of hardships and plea-Some of the early pioneers re-

Time was of no consequence in the day of the oxen. It was a full day's journey from Vesuvius to Ganges and back.

The pioneers recalled the five and seven miles they walked to school at the age of six. Those children had attended the original log school at Vesuvius in the Central Settlement or the log building in Griffith's Field at Fernwood. Classes were alternated in those days. Children at Central had school one day and Fernwood the next.

Many five-year-olds walked the distance between the schools on alternate days to avoid missing school.

The three elder Beddis boys Charlie, Jack and Henry would row each day from their home to Beaver Point, about five miles, and then walk another two miles to Beaver Point School.

That school was still in use in 1950. It was then the oldest school building still serving as a school in British Columbia.

It was not an easy life making a home on Salt Spring Island in the 19th century, agreed the old-timers, although food was plenti-from Victoria by small boats.

Game and fish were in good supply, but so were the predators and as fast as a man stocked up on poultry or livestock the cougars and the wolves fattened out. Rifle and bait were used for years before the aggressive predators were eliminated.

The story of Salt Spring Island mentioned the visit of Victoria's Mayor Percy George as well as the Premier. From Saturna came members of the Higgs, Spalding and Payne families.

Not all guests were listed. Oth-Not all guests were listed. Others mentioned were Mrs. Wilfe Ritchie, A. L. Wilson, Mrs. A. G. Crofton, Norman Wilson, Keith Wilson, Charles, Lionel and G.S. M. GERRY ASHTHORPE WILL BE MISSED

BY CULTUS COULEE

It was a sorry day for Pender when Gerald Ashthorpe was found in his car, dead.

On the way to the evening ferry on Friday, March 12, he had pulled over to the side of the road, near Browning Harbour turnoff.

A Vancouver friend, Walter Robinson, found no host at Otter Bay, to meet him. Why? George Logan's taxi obliged, and when they saw the Ashthorpe car, op-posite Estelle's Garage, the reason was apparent.

Mr. Logan got Louis Nofield to take his passenger to South Pender, while he got in touch with the RCMP at Ganges, Dr. Homer Rogers being off-island.

Grace Ashthorpe went to her sister, Mrs. Mary Lorette, in Vancouver. A family service was held at Mt. Pleasant Funeral Parlor. Burial was at Valley View cemetery.

No one helped around, more than Gerald Ashthorpe. Lending a carpenter's hand to add an extra room; bringing prestos from

"Gerry was a good guy!"
That's what people say.
As a Lancashire lad, Gerry came to Vancouver with his parents. He loved Canada. He knew all of B.C. and loved it. He loved the islands. It was his dream to live on one of them. And it was on South Pender that he found the spot that proved "beloved over all."

"They saw an ad in the paper and got in touch with me," says Nicki Liberto. "I went over to Burnaby to see them about the property. They bought in 1961. Gerry was a very wonderful person and well-liked by everybody

Flower Show in Cold Spell

BY ELSIE BROWN

The cool weather and flu will have to be blamed for the lack of interest in the Spring Flower Show on Mayne, but the old re-gulars were on hand to do the work necessary and exhibit their flowers and plants on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. P. G. James must be blessed with endless patience to continue coming over which entails boarding two ferries and many hours en route. Gardeners were most interested in the short talk given by Mr. James on the growing of tomat-oes. He stated there were 80 diseases that affect tomatoes and he warned against cultivating too deeply and over-watering, pioneer days.

The Ashthorpes made sorties to South Pender, to gloat, and pick a building site. The prevailing wind? Which way would the big firs fall in a gale? Robin Pollard took down the ones that might cave them in. Gerald liked having Don Grimmer and Dave Auchterlonie, grandsons of pioneers, build their place.

They moved into LUM 'S REEK, Birdwood Lane, in August, 1968. The six-room house is on rock. Grassy benches; fir, cedar, arbutus, drop away to the sea. The shipping lane sweeps along Boundary Pass, from Saturna's Monarch Head; crosses Plumper Sound, and west, down Swanson Channel; leaving the San Juans, backed by Olympics, in its wake. Sun-and moon-rise, behind Baker, are beyond belief. Gerry had lived in many places and was glad to put down his roots, at last.

Papajohn and Granmarie have a guest for a couple of weeks. He is Mufffi, our grandson's dog. The extra "f" in his name is our way of putting on the dog as we have another dog who visits the Island with the same name and same "Walt Disney" appearance.

CRAB THIEVES

Thieves are invariably dumb and plain stupid and this one illustrates it. Some weekenders raided Steve Maskow's crab trap and left some dead herring in it as bait. Result all Steve got was a couple of dog fish. Yes, we have this light fingered trouble here too, and we have a fair idea of who it is and they had better PRAY that we never catch them.

It is probably (?) nice, like President Nixon, to have a direct line to the President of the USSR but Mr. Georgeson on Mayne is just anti-direct lines. No wonder! Why? Because every time for a week that we called a num ber we got him on the phone. He was real good about it and even complained for us at the same time he blew his top at B. C. Tel. This its-an-act-of-God attitude of the people who supply us with essential services makes you want to say, ?!?!?!?!?!?!
