Batemans produce 'gorgeous' work

By ANDREA RABINOVITCH

Driftwood Contributor

Greeted at the front of Thunderbird Gallery by three Bateman pieces by father Robert and sons Alan and John, I'm struck by the awesome talent and commitment to realizing their artistic destiny while maintaining a sense of family.

Eight pencil sketches of individual animals by Robert Bateman, acrylic on masonite paintings by elder brother Alan and wood furniture by John, point to a family love of precision and fine grafity.

When Matt Steffich of Thunderbird Gallery approached the Batemans about a group show it just seemed right.

"I knew we could do it," confirmed John. "It just made sense."

The work in the show is gorgeous.

The elder statesman Bateman, environmentalist and naturalist painter, offers accurate and graceful sketches of both common and exotic animals. For Robert Bateman fans, their salivary glands will be flowing.

That same precision of line is evident in Alan's work. In "Crofton Ferry," he places a bollard dead centre with the artist's viewpoint looking out over the sea to Crofton from Vesuvius.

The drama of that suggests moving in a straight line towards a destination that, even though the arrival is inevitable, the events on the other side may not be so definite. A moment in time is captured. That same idea of something familiar evoking emotional response is hugely evident in the series he painted of his grandmother's cabin in Ontario. Besides being emotional for other family members, they are universally affecting.

Blueberry, a painting of a pie with a piece recently cut, completely fills the surface, focussing our eye on the one object and so bringing to it huge significance. It connotes the love that went into making it, the expertise gained from years of piemaking and the care with which the artist records a nostalgic memory that is clearly poignant.

John's woodworking is truly sculptural in that the exteriors are as superb as the interiors. These pieces need to be seen from all sides as he's used the grains of the wood to make individual statements from all angles.

Once again, those clean lines lovingly engaged with textures from the different woods produce coveted boxes, cabinets and a chest that you really wouldn't want to use, as the inside is so pretty.

The piece de resistance of the show is a collaborative box like a mini cabinet, built by John, with a painting of abalone shells on the right door by Alan, and painting of California quail by Robert on the left. It should get snapped up quite handily. This is a coup for Steffich's gallery and shouldn't be missed. The show runs at Grace Point Square till July 24

Rumba Calzada on stage

ArtSpring will sizzle on July 15 when Rumba Calzada heats up the stage with its powerful blend of Latin grooves and Afro-Cuban rhythms.

Part of ArtSpring's sixth annual summer festival, the quintet performs this Friday at 8 p.m. The percussion-driven sound includes piano, vocals, bass and horn arrangements in the West Coast jazz style.

Individually, the players reflect Vancouver's cultural mosaic, sprouting from a diversity of backgrounds. Performing since 1991, their recordings have captured the attention of the music industry with nominations for Canadian Independent Music Award, West Coast Music Award, and the Juno Award.

Latin Jazz, Salsa & Afro-Cuban fans will not want to miss the band that Los Angeles Latin Beat Magazine said is "guaranteed to move your feet and reach your soul."

Full festival details are available at artspring.ca/festival.htm. Tickets for the July 15 performance can be ordered on line at artspring. ca or by calling the Ticket Centre at 537-2102.

Wood guild show opens at ArtSpring

Islanders are invited to Touch Wood during the Salt Spring Island Woodworkers' Guild Annual Exhibition set to open Monday at Art-

Local woodworkers guild membership is 40 strong and more than half are submitting entries for the show, said exhibition organizer and self described "wood enthusiast" Celia Duthie.

"We're in a wood economy. I just want people to wake up and get with it to seize their own treasures.'

Along with recognized artisans like Illtyd Perkins, Bob McKay and Kurt Frost, a new crop of craftspeople are now making their presence felt within the local wood-arts scene,

"On the island, I know more than half a dozen of these wonderful young guys. They're young, keen and serious about their craft."

Woodworking guilds usually focus on furniture making but Salt Spring has an inclusive policy that will be reflected in the Touch Wood show, she said. Turners, joiners, cabinet makers and other wood artists of all kinds will come together to show original works in native woods.

We are really patriotic with using local woods to the point of almost knowing where the tree comes from,"

Fine and rustic furniture, bowls and vases, carvings, paintings, instruments, dolls, knives and chisels, and other woodworks will all be on display.

Woodworking demonstrations are also scheduled all day Monday and at 2 p.m. on July 19-23

Chris Scott will build a playhouse with new wood 'I-beam' technology starting at 10 a.m. Monday and then he will build a workbench with I-beam technology at 2 p.m. to be used for demonstrations for the rest of the show.

The playhouse will be auctioned off as a fundraiser for Mount Ers-

Frost will turn woodwork on Tuesday, Jeannie Paynter will build articulated wooden dolls on Wednesday, Will Simpson will bend willow on Thursday, Jesse Fisher will craft dovetail joints on Friday and Paul Way will illustrate the art of inlay on Visitors will also get to submit entries for people's choice awards.

The event opens with a reception featuring refreshments, music and a silent auction from 5 to 7 p.m. on òchas delivers Gaelic goodies in Sizzling festival

By MITCHELL SHERRIN Staff Writer

A young, vibrant and technically polished Scottish troupe offered a variety of Celtic delights for a sold-out performance when Dòchas hit ArtSpring on Saturday.

Opening with a power-house assortment of traditional jigs and reels featuring fiddle, bagpipes and penny whistles, the Scottish visitors provided extra tof-

"mouth music," ballads and rich samplings of accordion, harp (clarsach for the initiated) and frame drumming (bodráhn).

Among top-quality musicianship, drumming by Martin O'Neill (widely recognized as one of the top bodráhn players in the world) had almost everyone toe-stepping in their seats.

Indeed, it was a shame fees and creams with Gaelic ArtSpring didn't provide a dance floor since a few patrons even felt the urge to kick up their heels in the

> But just when the audience would start to feel weary from triple-time tunes, the six-piece Dòchas ensemble would unwrap another confection with an entirely different flavour.

> Lead singer Julie Fowlis even taught the audience

some mock Gaelic to chime in for a chorus of a traditional waulking song - once sung during sessions where women would shrink tweed to make clothing.

Fowlis' voice held the chilly wind of the Highlands to the back of the neck for sad salty ballads about fishermen caught in nasty storms and she could also skip nimbly over Gaelic tongue twisters with equal adeptness.

Shetland import Jenna Reid twinned the talents of deft fiddle work and equally rich backing vocals. She also offered a husky solo of Ae Fond Kiss in an encore that helped earn a standing ovadion and piano; Carol-Anne MacKay of Sutherland, on bagpipes and accordion; and Eilidh MacLeod from the Isle of Skye, on harp and piano, added multiple layers of sweet stuff for the ears from the plaid landers.

Fans of Celtic music gobbled up CDs like delicacies (Best Newcomers at 2003 Scottish Traditional Music Awards) - and no, you can't borrow mine.

If Dòchas is a sampling of things to come during the remaining nine performances of the Sizzling Summer Nights festival at Art-Spring, islanders had better book tickets fast - lest they find themselves looking at a proverbial chocolate box of empty wrappers.

MIMOSA takes Tree House stage

The Mimosa flower grows freely in the southern states of America, lining the streets of New Orleans with its captivating aroma. The band MIMOSA, on the other hand, was born in Vancouver, B.C. but fills venues internationally with its invigorating style of music, and lands at the Tree House Café in Ganges this Friday, July 15.

Drawing from a well of resources spanning the 1960s to the present —French lounge, New York swing, Brazilian bossas to original MIMOSA material — the quartet blends feels and tones together in an extraordinary bouquet.

"I saw the band in Vancouver and I m ecstatic to have them play here on Salt Spring", said Jill Thomas, owner/operator of the Tree House. "This band is just plain fun."

Featuring internationally renowned band members, the band brings together a harmony of skills resulting in a truly unique combination.

Anna Lumiere (also from Green Room and the Anna Lumiere Quartet) plays with great virtuosity and spontaneity, expressing herself in a distinctively punchy and avant-garde way.

MIMOSA's newest member, Rebecca Shoichet, has been seen in many musical theatre productions and jazz festivals, has toured Europe with swing-master Johnny Ferreira, and is recently back from a national and European tour with Canadian pop singer, Amanda Marshall.

With a smooth and silky sound that will warm even the coldest of nights, Jamie Hovorka (The Immigrants and Rumplesteelskin) is one of Vancouver's finest and most sought after trumpet and flugelhorn players.

As well, MIMOSA is backed by John Raham (known from MoFunk Recording Artists Millenium Project and Songlines recording artists The Marc Nodwell Sextet), one of Canada's most artistic and interesting drummers.

Trendy textiles on tap at Artcraft

By APRIL CURTIS Special to the Driftwood

"Today's Textiles, Tomorrow's Traditions" is the current offering in a series of Stage Gallery exhibitions within Artcraft. Five well-known island fabric and textile artists will present their work from Friday, July 15 until Wednesday, July 27.

This spotlight on felt, silk, wool, clothing, weaving and fabric art coincides with the upcoming Salt Spring Natural Fibre Festival.

Each event will provide opportunities to appreciate the beauty, comfort and serviceability of natural fibres and the variety of techniques and products in which they are used. The opening reception for the exhibition this Friday starts at 7 p.m. in Mahon Hall with the artists in attendance.

Ulrieke Benner is a textile artist and designer. She works with wool and silk to produce vibrantly colored one-of-a-kind clothing and and weave garments that are one-of-a-kind, but all of the clothing and her art is hand garments I make are simple elegant styles that can Irene Lieban has been working with fibres in various dimensions most of her life. She began weaving eight years ago and frequently does things that are not entirely traditional.

"I love mixing yarns of various kinds, weights, and textures and working with structures which leave the traditional grid of the loom. Producing movement in the weavings is particularly of interest to me," says Lieban, whose work is exploring new directions.

Long time Salt Spring resident, weaver, spinner, designer, Donna Vanderwekken took her university training in textiles and added to it in many ways including spinning and weaving while she was living in New Zealand

"I especially like to design and weave garments that are one-of-a-kind, but all of the garments I make are simple, elegant styles that can be made with a variety of fibres. The phrases that best describe my work are "elegantly simple" or "simply elegant," she says.

Jane MacKenzie is a printmaking graduate of ECCAD in Vancouver and West Dean College in England where she studied tapestry.

She has lived on Salt Spring for two years and works primarily as a weaver, creating scarves and shawls with silk using natural dyes. She has recently become interested in recycling used textiles to create new ones under the name "Knotty Threads."

By deconstructing used sweaters made from cashmere, merino and lambs wool and collaging them with vintage doilies, crochet and lace, she creates unique, stylish-yet-funky accessories

Linda Frost's move to Salt Spring was motivated by a desire to explore her creativity. Over the years, she has received training in stained glass, pottery, basketry, tapestry weaving, photography, painting, and drawing, as well as continually adding to her textile techniques and applications.

"Textiles have always been my greatest love and, in particular, natural fibres: cotton, wool, linen, silk, rayon. There is nothing in the world of synthetics to compare with a natural fibre for comfort, strength, breathability, warmth, coolness, acceptance of dyes and the sheer sensual luxury of the fibre."

These artists' work will be on display in the Stage Gallery at Artcraft weekdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays.

Maxx featured at Music and Munch

Vocalist and composer Lisa Maxx will take the stage July 20 at the weekly Music and Munch recital series, marking her first performance in the All Saints venue.

A resident of Salt Spring for over 30 years, Maxx began writing songs when she was nine years old with close to 200 original songs currently in her repertoire.

Despite extreme health challenges in recent years, she has continued to compose and perform, sharing "the music that feeds her soul."

Due to arthritic changes in her joints, Maxx is unable to play guitar and accompany herself.

"Losing the ability to play guitar is, for me, harder than when I lost the ability to walk," Maxx says. "When I needed to sort out my thoughts, my feelings, my life, I went to my guitar. Music has been my solace, my outlet, my best friend."

Undaunted, she continues to find inspiration through her voice and is teaching herself to play piano. For this Music and Munch concert, Maxx will sing mostly original material, including some devotional pieces never performed for an audience.

Well-known gospel spirituals including "While Angels Do Watch" and "Hold Out Your Hand" will be heard and folk songs, both traditional and original, including her often requested "grandmother song" entitled Farthu Draema Veign, will round out the set.

Music begins at 12:10 p.m. followed by an optional lunch for $5.50.

Guaranteed to reach your soul and move your feet, Rumba Calzada smokes with a powerful blend of Latin grooves and Afro-Cuban rhythms. With equatorial heat of their percussion-driven sound, Rumba Calzada is a Latin explosion of original and classic Latin Jazz & Salsa music.

Fun Paradise show needs tightening

By ANDREA RABINOVITCH Driftwood Contributer

It's a timely subject. People are buying up our little island with little concern for community, families are leaving for Courtenay, Cumberland, and Calgary, and long time residents are wondering what's next.

Paradise Relisted gives no solution to the problem but does offer a humorous narrative that pokes fun at the characters that live here and the life that they are soon to Adapted from the original play Paradise Lots, writ-ten collectively by the Salt Spring Hysterical Society, Paradise Relisted chronicles Frank's (Patrick Cassidy) journey from stressed out Torontonian to semi-initiated islander.

As demonstrated by the costume change from suit and tie to tie dyed t-shirt snugly fitted into Eddie Bauer shorts with black dress socks and oxfords still intact, Frank meets stock characters who speed him towards transformation.

Wally (Eric Booth), the aging hippie, handy man succumbs to greed, jogging and the scheming Fannie (Debbi Toole), soon-to-beex-wife of Frank.

The sartorially splendid Arvid Chalmers brilliantly

FRESH! NATURAL CUISINE

plays Milt, the realtor, and doubles as local raconteur

Rita (Sue Newman) is the sweet hippie chick with multiple partners and children who remains idealistic against all odds.

Reid Collins plays Annie, the land-rich Greenwoods resident, Island's Trust Grand Poobah and piano accompanist for the songs.

Rounding out the cast is Barb Slater as Tulip Rose Rainbow.

Issues like Channel Ridge development, trades people on island time, couples trading partners faster than a turnstile in a department store strike a chord with the audience.

The news everyone's gossiping about — the sale of Moby's — offers up some of the choicest bits. The best incarnation was that Moby's would be turned into a brothel called Hastings Ho's.

As a fun and short evening with some laughs for recognizable in-jokes for islanders, Paradise Relisted is just fine. As a piece of theatre, there are some problems.

The script, partially improvised and therefore offering a slightly new version every night, seems like a first draft; it is incomplete.

There are songs included, though there needs to be more, but if it's using the musical theatre genre, the lead-ins to the songs need to be written with more craft by someone who really knows

This could have been smoothed over by a director. In the program, the actors provide the director credit and that is the biggest prob-

The acting styles vary from honest portrayal to caricature with very uneven performances. Often words are lost and actors wander around on the stage making it hard to focus on their text. It all needs to be tightened up by an outside eye.

Hesitant line reads, missed verses in the songs, sloppy choreography point to an under-rehearsed show. Relying on the fact that everyone in the audience probably knows the actors and will, therefore, forgive any indiscretion, doesn't wash.

If you're running a show two nights a week for the whole summer and charging $15 per ticket, the tour-ist trade will be expected to fill up ArtSpring. They bring expectations from larger centres that demand more.

The problem lies in the process of making theatre on this island.

Because there is no money for the rehearsal period and only a split of the door dur-ing the run, actors have to commit to outside jobs and so can't put in the time that is required for a clean performance on opening night.

Bringing in a director means another cut in the proceeds.

There is a wealth of professional talent judging by performances in this show. If we're to raise the bar, structure must be built so the final product on opening night can be all that it can be.

Farmers' market nurtures Salt Spring-grown produce

By SEAN MCINTYRE Staff Writer

Cool and wet un-summer weather will not prevent the sprouting of vendors' stalls at the season's first farmers' market at the United Church meadow next Tuesday between 2 and 6 p.m.

Dozens of farmers will be on hand to provide visitors the chance to stock up on all manner of herb, fruit and vegetable products.

If it's in season and its local, event organizer Erin Harper said, the chances are pretty good it will be avail-

Harper, a farmer based in Fernwood, said the event is a vital tradition aimed at preserving the island's agricultural heritage and going well beyond merely accommodating shoppers' grocery

"If people want to get to know their grower, this is the place to do it," she said. "It's partly designed to get locals to come out and spend more time talking with growers and getting advice.

Harper said rising land values and a flood of produce from other, far-flung regions make farming on the island more difficult.

Despite a steady transition from an agriculturebased economy following trends of increased population and property values she reminded would-be farmers the Southern Gulf Islands have an ideal climate and still have a strong land base to support local agriculture initiatives.

"At one point Salt Spring was the breadbasket of the entire region, supplying 80 per cent of Victoria's food," she said.

Salt Spring Island grown produce now accounts for less than one per cent of what is consumed on Salt

Growing locally, she added, is a good habit to develop as changing economic conditions may make having food close by a necessity rather than a luxury.

"As oil costs increase, so do transportation costs," she said. "Growing locally helps to create a more stable future for the eventual need for organic gardening.

She said people stopping by the market could expect a more relaxed atmosphere than that offered by the popular Saturday market in Ganges.

In the meantime, the market provides a chance to hang out with growers and likeminded individuals, such as Melanie Platz and Paul deRoo who farm upwards of 50 varieties of heirloom vegetables on their small farm located along Fulford-Ganges Road.

"We're hoping the Tuesday market will become increasingly popular," said Platz. People will be able to avoid the parking problems and the hoards at the Saturday

What's more, people can leave knowing they are helping protect lesser-known varieties of produce and making small-scale farming a profitable enterprise.

'We've all been raised to think that food should be cheap," she said.

"Food in the grocery stores is very cheap and I'm often left wondering how much the farmer is actually get-

Though produce is not required to be organic, farmers are encouraged to bring organic produce to the table.

Failing an appeal to consumers' hearts, Harper challenged people to let their taste buds make the choice.

"Chances are it was pickled just before being brought to market so you know it's really fresh and it just tastes better," she said.

The market will take place every Tuesday afternoon until Thanksgiving week-

Fantastic deals inside and out at the Island Treasure Fair

Organizers of the Island Treasure Fair promise something for everyone at an upcoming series of live and silent auctions to raise funds for ArtSpring.

There will be over 360 donations to bid on at events scheduled for July 14, 15 and 16 and according to Jane Winter, one of the auction's organizers, this is the biggest and best fair ever.

"Our donors have been just incredible," she said. "Now all we need is tons and tons of bidders."

Participants will be offered the chance to bid on a vast array of goods for the home, services, trips, tools, and tidbits ranging from the very affordable to the lavishly luxurious.

"You will find furniture and house wares for the growing family as well as beautiful crafts, wonderful art, antiques, oriental carpets, and even a fine piano," Winter said. "There are fun items too, like a sailing dinghy or two tickets to the wildly popular Rolling Stones concert in

Perhaps the experiences and services will catch your eye: a week in Hawaii, an afternoon sailing cruise, a stay at Long Beach, a great meal at a local restaurant, Ron Perring, Judy Norget and Ken Tongue hold a treasure fair cherry table made by Tongue. (Perring is the miller of the wood, and Norget is co-chair of the event.

a massage, a manicure or an oil change, even some blasting.

Winter said this is a chance for everybody to come out and take a look at what's available, adding many will find it hard to find something unable to strike their fancy.

"There's really something for everyone, and in addition to all this, there is a lively Flea Market scheduled on Saturday under the big tent in the ArtSpring meadow," she said.

If you've never been to a silent auction, it's really very easy. Each auction lot has a corresponding bidding sheet. Bidders record their bids, and since you can see what the person before you bid, you only have to bid a slightly higher amount. If you want to be absolutely sure that your bid remains the highest, be there when the bidding closes at 7:15 on Saturday night!

The live auction also takes place Saturday night at 8 p.m. in the theatre. But if you can't be there to bid, you can still be part of the action by placing advance bids. Be sure to check the list of things up for auction in this week's paper or at www.artspring.ca.

Smooth sailing ahead at esuvius

Travellers between Vesuvius and Crofton left treading water due to mechanical problems on the Howe Sound Queen will not have to hold their breath for long, since repairs are expected to ensure a return to normal service by the 6 a.m. sailing from Vesuvius on Thursday.

For several months, a problem with the ship's gearbox has added an additional five to 10 minutes on the 20minute crossing.

Delays worsened as the day progressed and hourlong waits on late-afternoon and evening runs caused scheduling nightmares for visitors, commuters and residents traveling on and off

According to Deborah Marshall of the B.C. Ferry Service, delays even forced a cancellation of the route's final evening round trip.

"When a ferry misses a sailing it becomes something we really want to fix as soon as possible," she said.

Marshall said the operation will ensure the ship is better able to keep on sched-

In the meantime, the Bowen Queen is servicing the route until Thursday morning.

MARKET MAGIC: Tanis Smythe demonstrates spinning at the Saturday market in Centennial Park, as she helps promote the upcoming Fibre Festival. The annual event runs July 23-24.

Knitting mysteries will be unraveled at fibre festival

By SUSAN BERLIN

Driftwood Contributor "Look at that Fisherman

Knit sweater with all those cables! I wish I could knit something like that, but I can only knit and purl."

Well, guess what? That's all the person who knit the sweater can do! There are only the two stitches in knitting — everything else is just a matter of how you manipulate those stitches.

At the fourth-annual Fibre Festival from July 20-26, you can admire knitting in all its forms, or learn the basics from scratch yourself. You can also see heritage fleece animals in the barn, find out how the yarns made from their fleeces vary, and watch people spinning, knitting and weaving.

Just want to see what other people can do?

Come to the Farmers Institute on the weekend and see our display of fibre work done at different scales: knotwork (traditional sailors' work); Aran knitting (those fisherman sweaters) and delicate knitted lace.

Want to try your hand at knitting? On Saturday, come to the "Learn to Knit" booth at the Farmers Institute, pick up a pair of needles and some yarn and work with an experienced knitter to find out if you'd like to join the world of knitters.

Want to see the beautiful. sometimes dramatic work fibre artists produce? Fashion show tickets are available from the ArtSpring box office (537-2102).

For more information, to find out how to register for a workshop, or to read about other festival events: phone 537-1346; go to www.fibrefestival.com; or contact us at info@fibrefestival.com.

FALL FAIR FOCUS

Basketry is the Oldest of Crafts

By Sandy Barclay

Did you know basketry is the oldest of crafts? It came before weaving and pot making. Baskets were a way for primitive man to transport, prepare and cook his food. This year's Fair theme is "Farming Food for Thought." Why not try this ancient craft and make a basket for carrying fruit, eggs, bread or other food supplies. Check the library for books on basket making or take a class. Children, your basket weaving is always special. So time to get busy, we are looking for many, many baskets and a wonderful display this year.

2nd Annual Farmers' Institute Challenge

It's hard to believe the Fall Fair is only a few months away but we are already gearing up for the 2nd Annual Farmers' Institute Challenge. Nobody can forget the Institute members trying to hang clothing or milk the cows! So do come out Sunday (check the schedule of events closer to Fair time for exact times) and watch the members participate in challenges of farming activities with a twist.

Nicklaus schools islander

Islander Bob Quart had the opportunity of a lifetime when he got to shoot a warmup round with golf legend Jack Nicklaus as part of the Telus Skins Game in Whistler on July 4.
"It was an out of body experience," said Quart. "I'd like to do it again. I was just so excited at the time."

Nicklaus and four local amateurs played under scrutiny from crews as part of a friendly practice round in preparation for the televised skins game featuring the "Golden Bear" along with Stephen Ames, Vijay Singh and John Daly, Quart said.

"I'm not that good a golfer, that was the scary part."

Consequently, the islander was pleasantly surprised by the invitation to play with Nicklaus by Telus execu-

"I had a good working relationship with B.C. Tel,' Quart noted.

> Quart retired as CEO of Van City Credit Union in 1999 and he served as a director of VISA Canada, president of the Vancouver Club, vice-chair and director of Credential Securities and Credential Asset Management, and was a director of St. John's Ambulance - BC & Yukon Division, St. Vincent's Hospital and CHARA Health Care Society.

> "My caddy was the CEO of Telus," he said.

In addition to his current role as a director of ICBC, Quart is also a director of Jace Holdings, which operates the Thrifty Foods grocery chain.

Quart impressed to find that Nicklaus and the other pros were personable during the golf round and a subsequent din-

"They're people too," Quart said.

"By the time we got to the third or fourth hole, he knew us all by name and he complimented people on nice shots.

But Nicklaus maintained a professional approach to the game and worked out putting angles while his four partners finished each hole in the friendly best-ball match.

Quart even learned a handy tip from Nicklaus about driving for older players (Nicklaus is 65).

"At one point, he told me, 'Why waste your energy on a practice swing? Just go out and have fun."

This Week's Horoscope by Michael O'Connor

I will be on the island from July 15 to 20th and will be offering Personal Readings by appointment. Please call Michael at 250-352-2936

On July 16, 2005 at 5:34 Am PDT the Virgo (Aug 24 - Sep 22) planet Saturn entered (ingressed) the sign of Leo. Saturn will remain in Leo in Leo until September 2, 2007 before it enters Virgo on that day at 6:48 Am PDT. Saturn is the traditional heavy weight in Astrology and generally indicates the need for disciplined focus and concentration, order and organization, structure and action, effort and achievement. Saturn is colloquially know as the teacher and task master and implies delays, restriction, necessity, weight, limitation and the need for patient, effective, logical work. Hardly the life of the party, Saturn is akin to mathematics requiring strict adherence to logic, facts and rules. Is it any surprise that in medical Astrology Saturn rules the skeletal system, joints, skin and knees? Saturn can be very authoritarian and sobering to playful, creative, romantic and childlike Leo. However, at best it brings slow deliberate focus towards creative expressions with enduring power. This week's Horoscope offers a brief overview of what each sign can generally expect while Saturn transits

Aries (Mar 21 - Apr 20)

While in Leo, Saturn will make you bring more definition to your creative selfexpression. Your basic challenge will be to take a slow and deliberate approach to fortify and define your skills and talents. Sheer effort will not be enough and you will have to restructure your overall approach so that it is worthy of the caliber of expression that you are destined to perform. The time has come to hone your

Taurus (Apr 21 – May 20)

While in Leo, Saturn stands to bring some very real weight of responsibility to you. This process will affect you at a core level and more generally will center on home and family. Learning how to be a parent or to become a better parent are likely themes. Blending love with healthy discipline as a means of establishing more realistic and wholesome lifestyle habits is part of the plot. Be aware of tendencies towards cold heartedness

Gemini (May 21 - Jun 21)

Bringing more focus, effort and discipline to learning new skills, especially connected to relationships, is a strong theme with Saturn transiting through Leo. Becoming more aware of the importance of religion, law, art, culture and spirituality are likely themes. The rules of love will bring maturity wherever it is lacking. You could become more sober and realistic about many aspects of your life.

Cancer (Jun 22 - Jul 22)

Consolidating your overall focus and investments is a central theme for you while Saturn is in Leo. Possessions, real ships and other important relationships also come into play. Patience throughout this process will become a keyword.

Leo (Jul 23 - Aug 23)

Saturn in your own sign will constitute a confrontation of sorts with yourself. Your beliefs, sense of identity, dreams, aspirations as well as where and how you feel unfulfilled - what haunts you - should become more evident themes in your daily thoughts and experiences. Re-discovering a new sense of identity, direction and prominently. Be patient with this process purpose will be paramount. This can be a and intend to fully digest what you are takchallenging process so be conscientious.

A dissolution of old mind sets, attitudes, perceptions, self-concepts and their subsequent behavior patterns will occur while Saturn moves through Leo. This letting go process can be confusing, however, is as much as you can be open to surrendering and releasing the grip your mind has on who you think you are you could

Libra (Sep 23 - Oct 22)

Returns and rewards will come your way as Saturn moves through Leo. Whether these are positive or not depends upon the quality of your actions over the past 2 years or so. In addition, you will learn more about friendship and love. Humanitarian interests may gain your attention as may involvements with groups and clubs. This a time during which your concept of family will take on greater importance and wider

Scorpio (Oct 23 - Nov 21)

Career, public exposure and participation and your overall social reputation are in the spotlight for the next couple of years. In as much as you have been diligently preparing, learning and building a strong healthy momentum you will be promoted to new levels of leadership. If you have been unfocused, scattered and undisciplined, you may be in for a rough ride. In any case, opportunities to establish a new level of power and leadership will begin.

Sagittarius (Nov 22 – Dec 21)

Education, travel, culture, law, religion and spirituality are all likely avenues of focus while Saturn moves through Leo. This is your opportunity to embark upon new interests and cultivate your passions by way of new experiences, knowledge and awareness. A spirit of adventure and enthusiasm is likely to provide the inspiration you need to embark on some exciting

Capricorn (Dec 22 - Jan 19)

You are entering into a period of metamorphosis. By the time Saturn enters Virgo in a couple of years, old aspects of your personality will be stripped clean and you will be ready to learn new things. Since resistance is futile, embrace this process and trust that the universe knows what it is doing and what you need. Let go of control and let the caterpillar cocoon to become the butterfly.

Aquarius (Jan 20 - Feb 19)

New types, levels and qualities of commitment are central themes with Saturn in the Sign of the lion. Deep changes in your overall lifestyle will begin. These include a refinement of what you feel you need to estate, land investments and other move- be secure. Significant others will enter the able and non moveable properties will stage and engage with you in meaningtake on new importance for you over the ful ways. Ready or not, new relationship next couple of years. Building solid friend-involvements are coming you way. Prepare to meet the new friends, mates and partners of your destiny.

Pisces (Feb 20 - Mar 20)

Learning and refining skills is part of the plot with Saturn in Leo. Mentors and teachers will come your way and it is your job to listen and learn. These lessons will center on health and wellness, family, emotional security and love. Defining and refining artistic expression also features ing in as this learning will last many years.
